We're a diverse and welcoming city with a unique mix of beautiful scenery and easy living.

Lower Hutt is on a journey of growth and council is investing more in new recreational centres, community hubs and events centres, swimming pools, and investment in sports fields to offer many more quality choices for students after school.

We have an enviable lifestyle, with beaches, rivers, mountains and hiking within minutes of schools.

It's said in New Zealand, there's only ever "two degrees of separation" - especially in Lower Hutt where you can join the Mayor for coffee or talk future jobs with government agency scientists and business owners at a local café.

WELLINGTON REGION

0 4 8 12 16 km

We're just up the road from New Zealand's capital city, Wellington.

The Wellington region is creative, diverse and vibrant!

Wellington is a connected region where students rub shoulders with talented entrepreneurs and innovative business people. We celebrate our culture, arts, cuisine and breath-taking natural scenery.

Because Wellington is geographically compact it inspires collaboration between education providers, research institutions, the business community and the New Zealand Government.

Three world ranked universities, campuses of two technology institutes and over a dozen independent tertiary providers are all within minutes of each other.

Lower Hutt is a hub for innovation, with two government owned world-leading science and research institutes, start-up accelerators and many science and technology companies that engage with our education providers.

Wellington runs on smart people with around 50% of the working population in skilled employment. Wellington hosts the number one research university and has the highest proportion of tertiary educated people.

Wellington's educators are innovators in their fields. From digital and creative technologies and IT, to nano-technology and bio-medical sciences, to performing and culinary arts, Wellington has a full range of education opportunities and career pathways.
